

Tech Info Library

MacWorkStation: It Can Support User-written Code

Revised: 5/10/89
Security: Everyone

MacWorkStation: It Can Support User-written Code

=====

This article last reviewed: 9 February 1988

A host program can send a message to MacWorkStation telling it to execute a code module. The code modules should be in a resource whose ID is passed in the message. It is also possible to pass data or parameters to the code module.

Copyright 1989 Apple Computer, Inc.

Tech Info Library Article Number:2511