Tech Info Library

Macintosh: How To Convert OfficeWriter Files

```
Revised:        8/21/89
Security:       Everyone
```

Macintosh: How To Convert OfficeWriter Files

==

This article last reviewed: 9 June 1989

If you want to convert files created in MS-DOS application "OfficeWriter" to the Macintosh, consider a product from DataViz, Inc. called MacLink Plus/Translators. This product is a series of translators between different word processing and other file formats. The translators are for use with the Apple File Exchange application that we ship with each machine on the Utilities 2 disk. The translators, include one for OfficeWriter. For more details, search the Tech Info Library under "DataViz".

Copyright 1989 Apple Computer, Inc.

Tech Info Library Article Number:4080