

Tech Info Library

ELF: Where to Get More Information (11/94)

Revised: 11/22/94
Security: Everyone

ELF: Where to Get More Information (11/94)

=====

Article Created: 17 July 1990
Article Reviewed/Updated: 22 November 1994

TOPIC -----

I have lots of questions about the ELF (Extremely Low Frequency) radiation issue.

For example, how does the radiation from a 27-inch television viewed at 24 inches (the standard viewing distance for my seven and ten year old boys despite constant harassment on my part) compare to the radiation from an Apple Color RGB monitor viewed at 14 inches?

Where can I get such information?

DISCUSSION -----

The Apple Environmental Health & Safety group is responsible for information on Apple products and ELF emissions. While they do not currently have any direct access for the general public, questions can be posed to the Customer Assistance Center at 800-776-2333.

The Customer Assistance Center will do their best to obtain an answer to your questions.

Article Change History:
22 Nov 1994 - Clarified where to go for information on ELF.

Support Information Services

Copyright 1990-94 Apple Computer, Inc.

Tech Info Library Article Number:5932