TOPIC -----

The System 6.0.7 Installer seems to have trouble dealing with reinstalling the System software onto a disk that is using TrueType.

Even when the Installer is just doing a simple installation, it compares the Backgrounder that it has with the one that's been installed, and refuses to continue unless it's given permission to replace the newer Backgrounder with the older one.

Is there a solution to this problem that DOESN'T require extreme acrobatics? Or will I have to install the System software, replacing the new files with the old, then reinstall the TrueType set?

DISCUSSION -----

Unfortunately, here is no way around this situation. The System Software 6.0.7 Installer was released many months before the StyleWriter and Personal LaserWriter LS were introduced. The installer script writers did not anticipate this situation.
