=======================================================================

Article Created: 25 January 1994

TOPIC -------------------------------------------------------

For customers using the Chinese Language Kit, the product described below may be of assistance.

Note: this product does not compete with the Chinese Language Kit.

DISCUSSION -------------------------------------------------------

I recently demonstrated a product that meets the following needs for people using the Chinese Language Kit:

• Conversion of simplified characters to traditional, and vice versa, "on the fly."  In other words, users can create text on the screen using simplified characters, then convert it to traditional and back again.

• Complete phrase input, as opposed to character by character.

The product is called Sindex, and it is available as a bundle with a word processor called Wintext. Wintext is one of the applications that is listed as being "Worldscript 2-byte savvy."  It can be purchased from Pacific Rim Connections (415/697-0911) and is fully supported by the Chinese Language Kit.

For detailed information on Pacific Rim Connections, type their name as the search string.
